Talespin show characters

Hey! Hey! Spin it, let's start it! We're celebrating the 30th anniversary of Disney's TaleSpin this week. The animated series premiered on May 5, 1990, in the Disney Afternoon lineup. TaleSpin The TaleSpin series is highly rated by fans as a favorite cartoon in the Disney Afternoon lineup. The show revisited several iconic characters from Disney's Jungle Book animated film. The show's premise followed Baloo as a cargo pilot in the coastal town of Cape Suzette. The series copied the sense of adventure seen in DuckTales by showing daring aerial stunts, exotic locations, battles against air pirates, and an emphasis on family. Creating TaleSpin, the writers wanted to make an animated series based on Baloo. They enjoyed his dynamics with Mowgli, but they needed to create a new young partner for him, as they didn't want people on the show. That's how the show created a young cub named Kit Cloudkicker as a co-pilot and navigator for Baloo. The writers also continued the spirit of adventure, taking inspiration from the 1930s/1940s adventure series. The cast of TaleSpin characters featured a colorful cast of characters. The heroes and villains of the show were equally memorable. Baloo is a comedy hero and pilot of the series. Baloo flies on a yellow cargo plane called Sea Duck. He is usually portrayed as lazy or having fun with his friends. Despite his blunt nature and unorthodox practices as a pilot, Baloo is respected as the best pilot in Cape Suzette. Keith Cloudkicker is a 12-year-old Baloo assistant and navigator aboard Sea Duck. Louis - Orangutan Disney fans will remember as King Louis in the jungle book. Writers like TaleSpin to be a period piece reminiscent of old adventure movies. They based this version of Louis on the concept of Humphrey Bogart's bar in Casablanca. Louis Place is seen as a neutral zone for both the good guys and the bad guys to hang out during the series. This is the place where Baloo often met with some of his opponents or potential clients. Rebecca and Molly Cunningham - Rebecca was the owner of Higher for Hire, where Baloo worked in the TaleSpin series. She is also the mother of a young Molly. Wildcat is a scattered mechanic in Higher for Hire. Don Carnage - a cheerful captain of an air pirate and his team are looking in the sky for planes to plunder. Jim Cummings gave his voice and gave it life as a memorable Disney villain. Sher Khan is a wealthy businessman in charge of Khan Industries. He is often portrayed as cold and calculating. Although he is sometimes the villain of the series, he carries a sense of honor and respect for others. Sher Khan is a Bengal tiger who also happens to be a character borrowed from the jungle book. The modern look of the Current DuckTales series made to offer a cameo appearance for some classic tailSpin characters. They re-introduced Don Carnage and his air pirates in an episode where they dashed Scrooge McDuck's treasures aboard a cargo plane. DuckTales DuckTales on the air of the upcoming episode with additional characters DuckTales. So far we know kit Cloudkicker and Sea Duck plane will make a grandiose appearance. We hope you need some time to get back to the adventures of Baloo while watching TaleSpin at Disney. This is a classic animated series, and the younger generation will love it! (October 2008) (Learn how and when to delete this template message) (Learn how and when to delete this template message) This is a list of characters in the Disney animated series TaleSpin. TaleSpin was screened on Disney from May to July 1990, and premiered in September of that year. Higher for Hire Baloo von Bruinwald XIII (voiced by Ed Gilbert) is the main character of the series, based mainly on the sloth bear from Disney's The Jungle Book, but with a cap and a yellow shirt (and four fingers as opposed to The Jungle Book where he had claws). Although lazy, sleazy, unreliable and always broken, he is also an excellent pilot and capable of the most daring maneuvers in the air. He's flying a cargo plane called Sea Duck. He will also selflessly come to the aid of those who need help. His irresponsible behavior sometimes jeopardizes important situations, as seen in your Baloo's episode in the mail when he fails to send the winning ticket properly, putting Rebecca's ability to get $100,000 in prize money at risk. He also has a penchant for getting into circuits that require him to dress in drag according to the situation, such as when he became Rebecca's female co-pilot Tan-Margaret (played by Anne-Margret) in an episode of Female Air. Some of his manners survive from the Jungle Book, including his nickname Daddy Bear Keith, which Mowgli gave him. He also calls Kit Li'l Britches, as he did with Mowgli. In the first part of the episode Bad Reflection on You, Baloo gives his full name as Baloo Bear when introducing himself Khan Tower. However, in the episode the episode Balooest of bluebloods , it turned out that Baloo comes from a prominent noble family, and that the full designation of Baloo is actually Baloo, Baron von Bruinwald XIII. However, he himself at first did not know what increases the likelihood that he was adopted. In this episode, he inherited $500 million in extravagant estates that were taken away from him to address his family's impressively long history over taxes, thereby restoring the status quo. Baloo only once mentioned a family, referring to a gramophone recording belonging to his father. The name Balu comes from the Hindi word for bear: bhale (Hindi: भालू, pronounced ˈbʱaːlu). Gilbert replaced Phil Harris, who was originally hired to reprise his role from The Jungle Book. At 85, Harris lost some of his comic time, and producers concluded that he couldn't handle the load of the 65-episode series at his age and condition, and they weren't able to chauffeur him to and from his home in Palm Springs, California, a two-hour trip in each direction for each session. Keith Cloudkicker Kit Cloudkicker (voiced by R. J. Williams in some episodes, Alan Roberts in others) - a 12-year-old brown bear and navigator aboard the baloo plane, Sea Duck. His first appearance was in the pilot episode and the introductory television movie Robbery and Lightning. It was originally voiced by Alan Roberts, who made his voice for the 11 episodes, which aired as a preview before the syndicated premiere of the series. R. J. Williams voiced Keith for the rest of the series (including the pilot episode of Plunder and Lightning). His trademarks include a green sweater, blue and red baseball cap worn backwards, and his ability to cloud surfing (also referred to in the show as cloud skis). The baseball cap was a gift to Keith from Bal as a sign of friendship and trust. In an episode of Flight School Confidential, Kit's height appears to be 3ft 9in. After living with air pirates under don Carnage for one year before the series began, the introductory film claims that he left the air pirates because he was sick of them. Keith first encountered Baloo when he crashed into him at Louis Place, and then returned to Bala, grabbing the Sea Duck to escape the aerial pirates because they were trying to catch him. His ambition was to become a pilot and buy his own plane. Sometimes showing a selfish streak, Keith sometimes puts his dreams above the dreams of his friends. Having lived one most of his life, China's distrust of adults was evident in the show. He warmed up to Baloo only after he was given the opportunity to fly a sea duck, and even then was ready to go to greener pastures. However, he looked at other members of Higher for Hire as a surrogate, affectionately calling Bala Papa Bear sometimes. He Demonstrated his love for Rebecca Cunningham's daughter Molly on a number of occasions throughout the show, being seen giving Molly piggyback rides, and in one case saving her on his airfoil (the device Kit uses for cloud surfing - see below). Baloo gives him the same nicknames, such as Little Brits, which was bestowed by Mowgli from the Jungle Book. In Stormy Weather, Keith chastised Bala, saying, You can't tell me what to do! You're not my father! It was a decision that Keith regretted later in that episode. The whale was able to surf with a cross-country metal device called an airfoal and a regular cord attached to the back of a sea duck or other plane, allowing it to surf in the same way as someone wakeboarding or water skiing. It was not clear where Keith learned this skill, but he demonstrates on numerous occasions throughout various episodes that he is incredibly amenable to this. He can also use his board to free the slip without being towed by the plane. Baloo often gives his permission for Kit to be towed over a sea duck when appropriate, trusting Kit's skill to allow him to have fun. Baloo also had enough confidence in Kit to keep himself safe on air gunpowder when separated and under attack, or when Keith had to be outside for something important. Outside of such situations, however, he did not like Kit to take unnecessary risks, such as doing dangerous stunts or stunts. It is not entirely known when, where and how Keith was orphaned, but in related comics it turned out that he spent part of his life on the streets and then in the village of vagrants (not unlike the Hooverville reality) before the series. He also claims to have never known his parents, which may mean he lost them when he was too young to remember, for example, in infancy. In addition, his orphanhood may be based on the fact that orphans were prevalent during the nineteen-thirties, as the Great Depression was responsible for many orphaned children, although no reference to the Great Depression was made in the show. Rebecca Cunningham's Rebecca Cunningham (voiced by Sally Struthers) is a small brown bear with long 1940s-style brown hair, usually wearing a white turtleneck sweater, and a purple-red jacket and matching trousers. She is nicknamed Becky, Beckers, Beck (used only once in an episode of Star Torn) and/or BC (used once in War of the Strange) to Baloo, who at first became very indignant but soon got used to love (in return she calls him Fly Boy on occasion). She is an unassumingly attractive but insightful businesswoman with an mba. Rebecca bought Air Service Bal and his plane in the opening episode of Plunder and Lightning when the pilot failed to pay his bank loan and renamed the business Higher for Hire. Despite the fact that it was originally up to the administrative and trading functions of the business, a series of shows shows eventually learns to be a capable pilot in its own right. Baloo's laziness and light-hearted attitude to her duties often infuriates her explosive character, despite some possible feelings towards him from time to time that come as blistering jealous stripes, such as in the episode The Star Is Torn. Rebecca can sometimes be too quick to jump to conclusions and judge people. Rebecca lives with her daughter Molly in an apartment in an upscale part of Cape Suzette, which includes a waterfall in his design. She sometimes comes up with outrageous schemes to quickly earn extra money, for example, when she buys a pig to sniff out truffles instead of the new pontoon that Sea Duck needs in the episode The more they are, the louder they are. Sometimes she acts as a maternal figure for Keith Cloudkicker. However, in the episode It came from under a sea duck, Rebecca's confidence in Kit was put to the test. While Keith was babysitting her daughter Molly, the girl accidentally separated from him when the wagon she was on rolled down the hill and Keith had to catch up with her to the docks. When Rebecca heard that her young daughter was so far from home, she blamed Keith and prevented him from explaining what had happened, accusing him of being reckless and irresponsible. Later in the episode, her trust in him was restored when he saved her daughter from a giant squid (voiced by Peter Cullen), and she apologized to him for judging him too quickly. Molly Cunningham Molly Elizabeth Cunningham (voiced by Janna Michaels) is Rebecca's 6-year-old daughter. She's an enterprising child who, even at her age, isn't afraid to speak her mind the same way as her mother, who nicknames her Honey and Pumpkin (while Baloo calls her a Button Nose). Molly has an affair for her favorite ice cream brand Frosty Pep, and sometimes pretends that she is a Dangerous Woman (the action/adventure heroine of a popular children's radio program modeled along the line of proto-Wonder Woman) in search of adventure along with Kit and Baloo. She wears a doll named Lucy. She often outsmarts opponents much older than her. Her middle name, Elizabeth, is revealed in the episode Mom for the Day, and Molly is the only character who has a middle name. Molly takes a special interest in snow, which is problematic, as cape Suzette never snows. No mention has ever been made of Molly's father, as the creator of the Jymn Magon series reportedly said that Rebecca was either widowed or divorced, although in 1998 at the American fan convention WA online chat he stated in roundabout tones that she was actually divorced, as originally written in the first Press Release by TaleSpin. However, it is a clash with the comic The Long Flight Home, which, although more focused on Keith's past, claims that her father died. Wildcat Wildcat (voiced by Pat Fraley) is an ignorant and gangster lion who usually wears Outfit. Although very childish, he is ultimately a mechanical genius. For example, it can fix a broken phone in less than ten seconds. He speaks with a light lisp. The Wildcat has a special place in its heart for dinosaurs as they are his favorite animal. He also loves pets and toys. He is honest and truthful, but sometimes too truthful, to Bal's annoyance. Air Pirates Don Carnage (voiced by Jim Cummings, and Jaime Camille in DuckTales) is the leader of an air pirate crew and captain of a massive hybrid airship, an iron vulture that serves as an airborne aircraft carrier. He is the main antagonist in the series. According to the creator of the series Jymn Magon, he is a wolf, but has orange-brown fur, resembling a fox. He wears a blue Napoleonic-style high collar captain's tail (with a red interior, red cuffs, and gold trim and buttons, and with the top front unbuttoned and folded like a small red triangular fold on the chest), a red belt, light blue-grey trousers, and dark grey boots with grey cuffs. He is armed with a katlas, which he wears on the left side of his waist, so that he can easily access it with his right hand. He speaks with an accent that is a mixture of Spanish, Italian and French accents. He pronounces /t/ and /d/ as dental consonants, not ordinary English alveolar consonants. He is an experienced pilot and ruthlessly cunning with an oversized ego that makes his mistake with any scheme or raid he conducts with his pirates. When dogfights or raids, it flies a hybrid fighter that appears to be based on a low-wing monoplane, but with wings added so that it is actually a triplane. The Voice actor Jim Cummings cited the performance of Desi Arnaz as Ricky Ricardo from the television sitcom I Love Lucy as an inspiration. The other Pirates Mad Dog (voiced by Charlie Adler) is a skinny dachssaw with a Fu Manchurian-style moustache that wears aviator sunglasses on his head. He's Don Carnage's first mate (second in the team) and smarter than two henchmen, which doesn't say much. He has a weepy, nasal voice and is usually paired with a dumptruck. Dumptruck (voiced by Chuck McCann) is a great chunky dog who is second mate (third-in-command) Don Karnage, although he made the captain of the iron vulture in Karnage's absence in the episode Stuck on You, and (true to his name) is rather unintelligent. He is a clumsy Mastiff who speaks with a thick Swedish-Dutch accent and wears a hat with a purple feather on the left side. It can often be seen in the company Mad Dog. Gibber (voiced by Chuck McCann) is a pirate who whispers tips and other information in Carnaj's ear. He never said a word louder than his muttering. Hacksaaw (voiced by Charlie Adler) is a large yellowish colored raucous pirate who has sticks of dynamite strapped around his hands and his ears tucked together in a ring. He speaks with a nagging Australian accent. Ratchet Paulsen is the group's mechanic who helped assemble a lightning-fast gun in the pilot episode of Plunder and Lightning. Hal (voiced by Frank Welker) is an overweight tan. Seen in only a few episodes, his only major role in the series (and probably the only one where he spoke) was when he accompanied Mad Dog and Dumtruck on their mission to take on the rock cannon in an episode of Jumping Guns. His name derives from the one-time lines uttered by Dosk Karnaje in Grab and Lightning: Open the Door of the Bomb, Please Hal, which is a reference to The Famous Line Uttered by Dave in 2001: A Space Odyssey: Open the Door Pod, Please, HAL. Sadie (voiced by Chuck McCann) is a short, fat brown pirate who has a gray mustache and wears a Viking helmet. Jock (voiced by Tony Jay) is a black Scottish terrier and chief engineer of the Iron Vulture, who appears in the second part of the episode Bad Reflection on You. The DVD release of The TaleSpin Volume 1 confirmed his name in English subtitles with hearing impairments as Jock. Because of his thick Scottish burr, his name sounded like it was Jacques instead. Don Carnage mistakenly calls him Scotty, which is a reference to the famous Star Trek character as James Doohan. Moreover, Jock rhymes with Spock, another classic Star Trek character played by Leonard Nimoy. Jock hails from the Walt Disney film The Lady and the Tramp. Will is a one-time pirate gag seen very briefly in the episode In Search of Ancient Mistakes: Ever obedient, they started shooting At will when he ran past Carnage, instead of shooting at the Sea Duck, which is what Carnage meant. Thembrians Colonel Ivanod Spigot (voiced by Michael Gough) is a bluish-colored warthog (like all Thembrians), who is unnaturally short with Napoleon's complex and prominent lisp, and who is the head of the Glorious Folk Of Tembria. He never took a flight lesson in his life until he accidentally gave High Marshall the idea of shooting every commander in the Tembrian Air Force who failed the upcoming flight test in the episode Flying Dupes. He considers himself very famous and always presents himself as: Perhaps you've heard of me? His grandmother appears to have been eaten by polar bears, although it is not known whether the punishment for the loss of a national artifact (as it is a crime that requires this punishment) or an accident is unknown. Sergeant Dunder (voiced by Lorenzo Music) is second in the Singoth team. It is gregarious and somewhat dense as a Wildcat, but nowhere near as self-centered and merciless as Sigoth. In fact, he's friends with Baloo and Keith. He selflessly takes the blame for many of Colonel Spigoth's many and seems to be a devoted soldier. The High Marshal (voiced by Jack Angel) is a high-ranking military official in Tembria, and seems to serve as the strongest in the country. He has no humor and does not like Singota for his incompetence. He is married to an equally humorless unnamed woman, Tembrian, who is strong enough to knock him out with one punch. There are several problems that the high marshal does not solve without the threat of violence and death. Professor Crackpotkin (voiced by John Stevenson) is a mad scientist imprisoned in the maximum security prison of Endevidl Island for terrorist acts in an episode of Gruel and Unusual Punishment. He hates porridge, and it has been shown that he is willing to commit suicide to destroy the stocks of Tembria porridge without taking into account the collateral damage. His name is a reference to Peter Kropotkin, a well-known communist leader. Warden Slammer (voiced by Allan Melvin) is the stern warden of the Bedevilled Island maximum security prison in an episode of Gruel and an unusual punishment. Although at first he seems ruthless, in the end he becomes more or less a fair and level man. Bobbo (voiced by Edan Gross) is a 12-year-old boy who, along with Keith, is studying at what appears to be a Timbri flight school for 12-year-olds in an episode of Flight School Confidential. He meets and befriends Keith at the recruitment center, and the two boys become bunk in the alleged flight school. Its height is 3 feet 2 inches. Wally (voiced by Jack Angel) is a manager of a Timbrian bomb factory who plans to send a bomb addressed to the High Marshal in the episode Flying Dupes. He commands Baloo to deliver a bomb bag, but he never wants the bomb to reach the high marshal. Instead, he wants the Timbri border guards to find him before he can get to the High Marshal to blame Bala and call a war with Cape Suzette, which will increase the sale of bombs for his factory. Things don't go as planned, however, and the bomb makes it to the high marshal, but in the end it's Wally who gets blown up (and survives). His fate is unknown after that. Mick (voiced by Jim McGeorge) is an associate of Wally, who plans to send a bomb addressed to the High Marshal in an episode of Flying Dupes. He and Wally are both managers of the same bomb factory. Khan Industries Sher Khan Sher Khan (voiced by Tony Jay) is a Bengal tiger who also appeared in The Jungle Book but stands upright and wears a business suit. He sports retractable claws, which is a rarity in the show. Sometimes he is accompanied by an unnamed emaciated tiger yes-man office assistant. Khan is an extremely wealthy businessman and head of Khan Industries Corporation (sometimes called Khan Enterprises), which is the dominant economic force in Cape Suzette. Dour, humorless and a little arrogant because of his wealth and position, takes pleasure from running small companies out of business (above hiring sometimes on his hit list) with a sense of ruthlessness to circumvent the law as he chooses. He also likes to feed tiny insects to the many carnivorous plants he grows in his office. He once even struck a deal with Doad Karnaje and his air pirates to create an artificial oil shortage to extort higher prices from the public in the episode On the Wing and the Bear. It has a well-armed air force and navy, complete with battleships (called combat ships). This is mainly to protect it shipping and business interests worldwide. However, despite his ruthless and self-serving actions, Khan is willing to act noble from time to time, for example, ordering his forces into the air to protect Cape Suzette from aerial pirate attacks. He also shows respect for Baloo's piloting skills, most notably in an episode From Here to the Machine, in which Khan's plane was ambushed by Don Karnaj's aerial pirates and the robot pilot (created by sleazy Professor Martin Torque) refused to deviate from his flight plan because of his programming, causing the arriving Bal to forcibly remove the robot and take control of the aircraft (with Khan's permission) to participate in his routine. He also calls Bala a pilot to be reckoned with in Grab and Lightning after Balu manages to destroy Don Karnaj's lightning gun and cause serious damage to the iron vulture. The name Sher Khan comes from Hindi: Cher or Cher, i.e. lion/tiger (Hindi: शेर, Urdu: شیر, pronounced [ʃeːr]), and Khan, i.e. South Asian title or surname (Hindi: खान, Urdu: خان, xa.n). The other buzz (voiced by Kenneth Mars) is a short purple-haired bird of uncertain species, which is eccentric in the home of inventor Khan as well as an old friend of Baloo.' A self-styled loyal man of the company, he is also the captain of the company's chess team. Buzz's most famous invention is a prototype helicopter that promises to allow its employer to become the first marketer of a revolutionary new type of aircraft. He appeared in episodes of Ball Thunder and Bullethead Baloo. Ms. Snarly (voiced by Jennifer Darling) is Khan's ruthless and loyal elderly secretary, who has appeared in episodes of On the Wing and the Bear, Baloo Thunder, 38 and Bullethead Baloo. She's (apparently) obstinate. Dr. Debolt (voiced by Rob Paulsen) is Khan's chief scientist and slightly nervous rabbit, who led the effort that created a subelectronic amplifier to power Khan's industrial sectors, which was later stolen by Don Karnaje and eventually used to power a lightning gun in the pilot episode of Plunder and Lightning. In the episode, the name Debolt is never mentioned, and it is simply referred to as Doctor. However, his name turned out to be Dr. Debolt's comic book adaptation Douglas Douglas Benson (voiced by Mark L. Taylor) is a tabby cat and investor working for Han Industries, who lost his job as a result of a combination of ridiculously bad investments (such as glowing in the dark sunglasses), forging Khan's signature and the blatant abuse of Khan's private air force for personal gain in an episode of Louis' Last Stand. His quick character and somewhat clumsy antics were a constant source of laughter for those around him (especially Khan's elite pilots). This laughter was something he couldn't stand, and he responded by repeatedly shouting Stop laughing! at the top of his lungs. Walters (voiced by Phil Crowley) is a gray Panther investor who was Douglas Benson's assistant and confidant in The Last Position of Louis. Mr. Perry (voiced by Michael Bell) is an intriguing and sharply dressed cheetah employee who secretly collaborated with Khan's rival, Mr. Sultan (head of the Miniversal Corporation), to steal a secret helicopter from Khan Industries in an episode of Baloo Thunder. Garth (voiced by Patrice Zimmerman) and his unnamed partner (voiced by Tony Pope) are well-dressed panthers and Han tigers respectively, whom he sent to teach Baloo a lesson about greed after the bear foolishly took advantage of Khan's generosity in the episode Saving the Tiger. Garth's knees were in serious danger when he angrily yelled at Baloo during a phone conversation with his boss inadvertently, but he apparently avoided being the target of his employer's wrath. Captain Hotspur (voiced by Frank Welker) is the gravel-voiced left-wing commander of one of Khan's military helicopters in Bad Reflection on You, in which he was sent on a mission to solve the mysterious disappearances of Khan's cargo planes in the top-secret Master Run route near the towering Twin Spires, which was called by the Dons. Hotspur, like Khan, is very impressed with Balu's abilities, seeing him in action, flying on Sea Duck, when he went to the mine to warn the ship at the last moment that he was dangerously lured to a minefield, and performing daring aerial maneuvers, dodging pirates. Other characters Louis (voiced by Jim Cummings) are a cheerful orangutan who also appeared in The Jungle Book, but here he wears a Hawaiian shirt, straw hat and lei, as well as owns an island nightclub and motel called Louie's Place, located near but outside the guard of Cape Suzette. It also serves as a gas station/pit stop area for pilots. He has numerous monkey staff who help him manage his institution. He's Baloo's best friend (not a case in the jungle book, but as in the later Jungle Cubs), but can sometimes be competitive with him when it comes to women hunting for treasure and sometimes in business matters. As it turned out in the episode Louie's Last Position, his influence on the island is somewhat weak, albeit thanks to ingenuity and aid relief his friends managed to avoid losing him. Louise L'Amour (voiced by Jim Cummings) is a wealthy aunt Louis who loves parties and appears in the red chimpanzee redemption episode. To her nephew's chagrin, she wreaks havoc wherever she goes (especially in his place in business), calls him Louis and aggressively pursues beautiful men who speak with accents (such as Don Carnage and dashing French pilot Juak Tujur) and destroys their lives. She suffers from a broken heart quite easily, but always bounces back with a new flame at the ready. It is called the play by the Western writer/adventurer Louis L'Amour, and the title and plot of the episode in which she appears, based on the story of O. Henry The Redemption of the Red Chief. Jungle Aces Secret Midnight Club (often simply referred to as the Jungle Aces) is a club of young wannabe pilots of which Kit Cloukickier is a member. Other members of the club include club leader Ernie (hyena; voiced by Whitby Hartford), hippopotamus, rabbit and bird. Club Rules will say that all members should have had adventures prior to coming, the fact that temporarily prevented Oscar Vanderson from joining while he had an adventure in an episode of Captains Outrageous. In Bullethead Baloo, they briefly change their name to Pulihed's Brigade. Oscar Vanderset (voiced by Ben Ryan Ganger) is a short, evoking bear cub who wears a formal jacket, shirt, bow tie and tick glasses in an episode of Captains Outrageous. He is a naive friend of Keith, who wants to join his Jungle Aces Secret Midnight Club, to the consternation of other members, as one rule stipulates that a person had to experience a real adventure in the club. Keith's attempt to help him join is thwarted by Don Karnage, who wants to kidnap Oscar to get his wealthy parents, in particular his very super-protective mother, to pay a huge ransom for him. Keith, Baloo and Wildcat lay out a plan in which Baloo takes Oscar for a walk in The Sea Duck, while, unbeknownst to Oscar, Keith and Wildcat dress up as pirates and fly out on a biplane to pretend to attack the Sea Duck to give Oscar an adventure and thus get him to the club. (Rebecca and Mrs. Vanderset require a little convincing before Oscar is allowed to ride in Sea Duck. Who then attack the Sea Duck, causing Oscar and Baloo to actually be held hostage along with Keith and Wildcat the leader of the air pirate. clumsy and very dim savvy heavyweights, rhino and gorillas (voiced by McCann and Cummings respectively) who are known only collectively as the Goons. He appeared in episodes of Time Waits for No Bear, The Golden Friendship Proquette, Double or Nothing. His name is a reference to Trader Joe's. El Gato (voiced by Cummings) is a large, manic swarthy-looking feline with a thick Spanish accent and unpleasant character that wears a colorful poncho, Mexican-style sombrero, and braided hair in an episode of Destiny's Rides Again. Accompanied by a wild-card crow and flying on a giant condor (both voiced by Frank Welker), he is insistent on getting Idol of Doom (the golden mascot of the llama figurine, famed for having great mystical powers for those who control it), which he wants to use for evil and almost succeeds when he tries to argue with him from the undesirable possession of Baloo and China. Professor O'Bowens (voiced by Patrick Pinney) is a chimpanzee archaeologist who discovers The Idol of the Spiritual Switch in an ancient, mined temple in the episode Baloo Switcheroo. When Don Carnage and his pirates try to steal the idol, O'Bowens escapes with him and gives it to Bal and Keith for safekeeping, telling them to fly away while he stays to distract the pirates. Later, after the idol forces Baloo to switch bodies with Keith and Rebecca to switch bodies with Carnages, O'Bowens joins Bal, Keith and Rebecca, and goes with them to help resolve the situation. He stars in Destiny Rides Again. His clothes and the whip he wears are a reference to Indiana Jones, as is the fact that he takes an idol from a mined temple. Ignatius, aka Ignatz (voiced by S. Scott Bullock) is a clever semi-atropomorphic parrot who knows the location of a great treasure in the episode Polly Wants Treasure. He and Baloo do not get along, but he befriended Keith, and the two of them go looking for treasure. However, Don Karnage wants to get Ignatz to tell him where the treasure is. Seymour (voiced by Hamilton Camp) is the owner of Seymour's See More Seaquarium aquarium in All's Whale That Ends Whale. He insults and neglects the animals in his care, including a whale named Moby Dimple (voiced by Frank Welker), who befriends Keith. Keith and Baloo are worried about Dimple's well-being, much to Seymour's annoyance. Keith and Baloo eventually helped Dimple escape from the theme park, and Seymour was eventually arrested for possession of an illegal harpoon type. Inspector Barrow (voiced by Cummings) is an otter and inspector who works for ACHOO (an agency concerned about the happiness of ocean oddities) in All's Whale That Ends Whale. He inspects the Seymour theme park, but because of the illusions created by Seymour and his staff, doesn't notice anything wrong with the park. Later, Barrow notices Seymour with an illegal harpoon and forces the police to arrest Seymour. Barney O'Turret (voiced by Angel) is a short and grizzled but good-natured pensionier-pig on Cape Suzette, who wears a jumpsuit and captain's cap, and who has worked on the rocks for 50 years and has never fired (but claims that, according to his catchphrase, saw it done a million times). He is clueless and constantly underfoot as Baloo and Louis try to stop the plot of air pirates to begin a raid on the city when they overpower the guards to let the iron vulture pass behind the protective outer cliffs. Despite his clumsiness, he, along with the pilot and the owner of the nightclub, manages to save the day. He appears in the episode Jumping with Guns. McNey (voiced by Cummings) is a big koala who hates children, with an unpleasant temper and a rude Australian accent that appears in the episode Mom for the Day. This hunter/poacher will do anything to grasp the ideal beast (even endangering the lives of others in the name of profit), particularly when he captures, loses and re-hunts the mythical but gentle Icarus with whom Molly is friends and calls Henry (voiced by Frank Welker) and whom she protects from the clutches of McKney. Covington (voiced by Cummings) is a smooth-minded, brawling, light grey Panther crook who wears a mustache, sharp clothes and a wig in an episode of Molly Coddled. During a high-speed boat chase around the inner harbour of Cape Suzette, he hid an ancient wooden cat mascot that led to a rich treasure on Skull Island (which doesn't quite look like the real Skull Island very much) in Sea Duck to hide it from two criminal badger accomplices whom he recently crossed twice. When Molly discovered him and took him for the doll the next morning, he charmed Rebecca's heart to get to the doll. Molly saw him for what he was, and knowing that he wasn't quite interested in her mother, did everything she could to drive him away and keep him from getting his hands on the doll. After a series of tangles and shin bones from the little girl, he restored the wooden figure and briefly possessed a ruby figurine to which she pointed the way, only to be thwarted by Molly, who finally exposed him as a fraud Rebecca. A little later, after he accidentally let go of ruby during a greedy fight near a boiling hot mud pit, he was finally caught by his former partners and got (behind the screen) his mere desert from them. Daring Dan Dawson (voiced by Cam Clark) is a sleazy owner and lead entertainer in Stormy Weather. He seems to be a ferret in an old-fashioned cap and aviator glasses. He almost destroyed the father-son bond between Keith and Baloo through manipulation and outright lies, briefly persuading Keith to run away and join his circus. Prince Neverhasbeenbroke (voiced is an eccentric but kindly hyena ruler of an unnamed Middle Eastern desert country who asks the Higher for hire to deliver a large iceberg to his country in order to create a ski slope next to his palace in the episode I have only ice for you. The crew manages to carry out the delivery, despite the fact that it was temporarily hijacked by the air pirates Don Karnaj, who think that it is hidden diamonds, and all-round Rebecca, who flies on the Sea Duck, delivering it because of the temporarily suspended license Baloo. He wears a turban and tunic and speaks with a stereotypical Indian accent. He also has his own harem, which is briefly shown with him during an episode of Golden Term of Friendship. Howard huge (voiced by Adler) is a rich but manic hippopotamus, an airplane designer appearing in an episode of Bearly Alive. When Baloo confronted him, he kidnapped the pilots and stripped their planes to pieces and materials to build a giant flying wing, which he called Titan Turkey. His name is the obvious pun of the famous aviation pioneer Howard Hughes. Jack Case (voiced by Brian Cummings) is a half-hungry rabbit and spy wannabe who appeared in the episode Spy in the Ointment. In fact, he is the postman who accidentally sent the wrong package to The High Marshal of Tembria. Planning to switch the wrong package to the right one, he convinced Rebecca that he was a government spy and that he should be taken to Tembria on national security. Shortly thereafter, it became clear that the case was a fraud: the package contained expensive fishing worms for High Marshall. The case put Bal and Rebecca in jeopardy by tying them to his espionage fantasies and making Colonel Spigot think they were involved in a bomb plot against High Marshall, and in return they left him when they fled from Tembria. The case was last seen in the custody of the Timbri forces, and his fate is unknown after that. Dr. Axolotl (voiced by Roger Bumpass) is a psychotic lizard inventor who sought revenge on Shere Khan with his robot, Mechanical Electric Worker or M.E.L.. (voiced by David Lodge), which he reprogrammed to be quite destructive and almost unstoppable in an episode of Bullethead Baloo. Dr. Sibaldo (voiced by Dan Castellaneta) is a short, courageous fox mad scientist who invented a tapering beam in order to lighten his clothes in his luggage in the episode The Incredible Squeeze Molly. After a setback in which Molly Cunningham accidentally shrunk, he abandoned his research in favor of a new idea: television. Needless to say, Baloo was not impressed with the idea. An interesting fact about Dr. Sibaldo is that Castellaneta's voice, playing him, is the same voice as He played Megavolt in Darkwing Duck. Colonel Grogg (voiced by Bell) is a jingoistic, paranoid and overly excitable military intelligence spaniel officer who has appeared episode of War of the weirds. Obsessed with the threat of an alien invasion, he secretly tracked and recorded radio transmissions to Baloo during his fake mission to Mars, which, unbeknownst to Grogg, was in fact a lame attempt to lure a two-week vacation on Lake Flacid from Rebecca. He later became convinced that a Martian invasion was inevitable after Baloo staged a Martian attack on the radio so that Rebecca would not call him all the time. Excessively zealously stopping the Martians and threatening to imprison the guilty, if it turns out to be a hoax, he dragged Rebecca, who was on the invasion to teach her pilot a lesson in lies - and Wildcat along the lake. Seeing a convincing light show, which was put on by Bal and Keith, he went into a frenzy and attacked the Camp Baloo with machine gun fire and grenades. He soon encountered Baloo (in a Martian outfit) and saw him attack Rebecca with a flesh-melting willow cannon that injects guacamole into her. Terrified, Grogg fled the scene to bring reinforcements led by his bulldog uncle, General Bucky (voiced by John Stevenson). Unfortunately for Grogg, on his return to the lake, not only was there no sign of invasion (Martian or otherwise), but only the people there (actually Supreme for hiring a crew posing as a family on a hike) claimed to have seen nothing either. Embarrassed and convinced that his nephew was hallucinating (again), the general quickly arrested Grogg in the rank to the private, much to the disappointment. Professor Martin Torque (voiced by Patrick Gorman) is a Doberman inventor who sought to replace every pilot at Cape Suzette with his Auto-Aviator (voiced by Freley), a coldly effective robotic pilot who was bought by Sher Khan in the episode From Here to Machinery. As a result, every freelance freight service in the city (including Higher for Hire) was put out of business, and every pilot (freelance or otherwise) was out of work. After his attempt failed in an incident with air pirates (due to the programming of robots unable to deviate from their course), he tried to sell his reprogrammed machines to uninterested housewives of Tembria at an unhappy post off the beaten track. Babyface Half Nelson (voiced by Camp) - a bulldog gangster who tricked Baloo to help him avoid police detention in the episode Bringing Down Babyface. When he is not in police custody, he lives with his mother Mrs. Half Nelson and is sometimes accompanied by two thugs (voiced by Ed Gilbert). His name is a reference to Baby Face Nelson. Mrs. Half Nelson (voiced by Billy Hayes) is Babyface Half Nelson's Mother in an episode of Bringing Down Babyface. Detective Thursday (voiced by Angel) is a hard-boiled dog detective who appears to be leading the secret Police Department of Cape Suzette, which is headquartered under a laundry room in South Australia. It's a game of voice. He is very much like Humphrey Bogart, and his name is a clear reference to Joe Friday. His main drawback is Officer Gertalain. Heimlich Menudo (voiced by Mars) is a leopard criminal featured in the Vowel Play episode, and who is absolutely obsessed with diamonds, to the to the knowledge that he practically worships him and even has dental diamonds. He and his henchman, Vicheh (voiced by David L. Lander), tried to steal all the diamonds at Cape Suzette using a very ambitious plan, which he called the Heimlich maneuver. Officer Hertalin (voiced by Danny Mann) is a doggy police officer and detective's chief scoundrel in Thursday's episode of Vowel Play. The unnamed police officer (voiced by Camp), who looks almost identical to Hertalina but has a different voice, appears in the episode Bringing Down Babyface, but it's unclear whether it's Hertalin or a separate officer. In addition, an officer who looks like Hertalin makes an unsiently appearance near the end of an episode of All's Whale That Ends Whale, in which he participates in the arrest of Seymour for possession of an illegal harpoon. Officer Malarkey (voiced by Cummings) is a pig policeman who speaks with an Irish accent in Bringing Down Babyface. The unnamed pig cop also makes a brief, non-speaking appearance in an episode of Vowel Play, but it's unclear whether it's Malarkey or a separate officer. Similarly, an officer who looks like Malarkey makes an unspoken appearance near the end of an episode of All's Whale That Ends Whale, in which he participates in the arrest of Seymour for possessing an illegal harpoon. Tiny (voiced by Cummings) is an exceptionally large and tall polar bear, owner and bartender of the Tiny's Grill restaurant and bar frequented by gangsters in Bringing Down Babyface. In the alley behind the Tiny restaurant there is a hatch, which is the entrance to the sewer shelters Babyface Half Nelson. Mr. Sultan (voiced by Corey Burton) is the head of Miniversal Corporation, a competitor to Sher Khan Industries Corporation. He's an elderly tiger who paid Mr. Perry to steal a secret prototype of Buzz's helicopter and apparently planned to pass it off as the design of his own company. He appears in an episode of Ball of Thunder. Kitten Kaboodle (voiced by Tress MacNelle) is a seductive blonde feline Starrwood (read Hollywood) starlet with a raucous Lauren Bacall as a voice who acts like a femme fatale and can manipulate any unfortunate man under her spell in the Episode Of The Star. She became a wedge between Baloo and Rebecca's relationship when he saved Kabudle's life in a street shooting accident and hires him as a stuntman for her next film, which suffers from a series of accidents by a mysterious saboteur who Rebecca discovers herself as a kabodle. Kabudle sabotaged her own films to boost her sagging and bad acting skills. She lost her temper during a failed plane crash she created for the stricken Baloo (who gave her the nickname Kiki) and was later taken over by the police. She also appeared in the episode Louie's Last Position. Katie Dodd (voiced by Ellen Gerstell) is a fox archaeologist who discovered the lost town of Tinabula in the desert country of Gafia in For Whom the Bell of Clangs. This tall, brash and voluptuous redhead has the same attitude as she does in appearance and intelligence, as she is prone to fish behavior and is not afraid to tell any man to jump into the lake. However, this did not stop Baloo and Louis from demonstrating for her in a vain attempt to compete for her attention. Mira (voiced by Liz George) is a petite brunette dressed in khakis, a hat and square-rimmed glasses, as well as a state archaeologist and culture minister of the tiny desert country of Aridia in Finding Ancient Misconceptions. A truly sweet and very intelligent woman, her sunny temper is almost the complete polar opposite of Katie Dodd. She recruits Bala and Wildcat to help find the lost pyramid to create a tourist attraction for her poor country. She is usually slowly angry, but is not afraid to stand up and show some backbone when it really matters. Princess Lotta L'Amour (voiced by Kat Suse) is the crown prince of the Middle East kingdom of Macadamia, smart, beautiful and strong compared to her seemingly dim monarch father King Amuk in the episode The Road to Macadamia. It becomes a target not only for the affections of Baloo and Louis while delivering goods to the country, but also for the power-hungry buzzards of Chancellor Trump, who wants to marry her to rule the kingdom after orchestrating a palace coup, withholding the tax money of the national treasury to create a public uprising that she, Baloo and Louis foil in time. Although she likes both Baloo and Louis, she does not fall in love with any of them, but is is grateful to them for returning her kingdom to the rightful rulers. King Amuk (voiced by Howard Morris) is a mature and congenial rabbit monarch of the Kingdom of Macadamia and father of Princess Lotta L'Amour in the episode The Road to Macadamia. Dressed as a cross between a king and a court jester, he initially looks like a not-too-bright but a shrewd leader who manipulates his intrigue of Chancellor Trump to think about abdicating, leading him to believe he is too incompetent to rule the people, and almost allowing Trump to marry Princess Lotte against her desires to restore faith in the monarchy. After the plot failed, Amuk sparingly rewards Bala and Louis with a cargo order of ten bags of macadamia nuts raised in chocolate, and an invoice of $192.12, for which they came in place, not the richest reward they expected. Chancellor Trump (voiced by Cummings) is a pandering vulture to usurp the throne of King Amuk to gain the wealth of Macadamia's royal home in The Road to Macadamia. First he plans to do so by secretly raising taxes to make the king unpopular while the citizens of the kingdom and the treasury are poor. During the arrival of Baloo and Louis, he hatches a different scheme to marry Amuk's daughter Princess Lotte L'Amour, as three of them try to uncover the plot, despite the fact that he has his own small army of rhinos of the Royal Guard under his command. When Trump's plans go awry, he confesses his crimes, pleading to be locked up and tortured, the more antics Baloo and Louis have all agreed to. Owl Capone (voiced by Maurice LaMarche) is a diminutive gangster who appears in My Fair Baloo. He overtakes a giant spruce moose (read Spruce Goose), which is a giant plane on which Baloo and Rebecca go to the businessman's posh bal, primarily after Rebecca wishes to be gentle with a wealthy clientele. Capone steals jewelry from most people (except Rebecca, who did not have them) and twice takes people hostage on the plane. He's a parody of the real gangster Scarface Al Capone. Thaddeus E. Klang (voiced by Tim Curry) is the leader of a cult organization looking for a secret weapon hidden in the lost city of Tinabula in the episode For Whom the Bell of Clangs. It is a green cobra with a black cloak, a hat similar to a sorcerer, a metal jaw (capable of crushing solid objects with its bites) and metal limbs that speak with a metallic echo in the voice (an abundance of metal is the basis for his name). He managed to pose a great threat and even obtain the weapon of the lost city (a destructive bell-like device using sound waves), but was defeated when he fired a weapon at the master bell that summoned him and buried the city. After that, his metal parts fell off, which suggests that he is just a normal, albeit oversized, cobra, which then began to roam the desert. His fate is unknown after that. Ace London (voiced by Phil Hartman) is a highly arrogant but highly regarded gray wolf pest pilot who went to school with Baloo and ridicules him and his abilities after winning a pool game against him in an episode of Mach One for Gipper. He then accidentally switches a load of Baloo pickles with a secret jet engine, but instead of telling the truth when asked, he lies and says that Baloo did it. When Don Carnage tries to steal the engine, the real test of the two pilots begins. Unfortunately for Ace, Baloo and Wildcat not only break the sound barrier instead of him, but his lies are revealed, and he is forced to deliver the cargo to Bal. Extremely selfish, he not only lies about switching cargo but he he claims that Baloo resisted his orders to hand over the cargo and forced him and the pilots to help him land when Baloo had no idea he was the wrong cargo, and Ace himself shot Bala, who was trying to return the engine and did not attack at all. Whistle Jackson (voiced by Camp) is a childhood hero of Baloo who appears in Whistlestop Jackson. Legend. Whistle was a hero to millions and a legend in his time for his aeronautical prowess and signature biplane. As a young man, he once knocked out aspiring entrepreneur Sher Khan on a contract for air travel, leaving Khan a bitter rival. However, by the time Rebecca hires him as vice president, Whistle's skills are extremely outdated, and he does business solely on the basis of his reputation. While Baloo's view of Whistlestop is blown away when an aging pilot knocks down a Sea Duck test flight and forces him to take the blame, they make up and, with Baloo's help, Whistle again beats Khan in securing another lucrative contract for air cargo, this time for Higher for Hire, which allows the aviation master to retire in the big bang he had always hoped for. Finance Minister LaFong (voiced by Angel) is the country's finance minister, Clopstockia, who colludes with Shere Khan to secure a lucrative air travel contract between Clopstockia and Khan Enterprises in the episode Whistlestop Jackson. Legend. He also advocates Khan's efforts to remove Whistlestop Jackson as a threat to their plan. Joe Magee (voiced by Hal Smith) is an old pilot and flight instructor who appears in the episode Old Man and the Sea Duck. During a situation in which Baloo flies alone in Sea Duck, Magee helps Bal to land at his airfield because Baloo can't remember how to fly because of the amnesia he received from a blow to the head during a previous flight. He then helps Baloo recover his memories of flying, teaching him how to fly again and about the true meaning of flying (i.e., fun and feel free). When Baloo recovers his memories, Magee invites him to fly home alone, but Baloo is too scared to fly solo because of the flight phobia alone, which he developed after two recent emergencies in Sea Duck. When Baloo pretends to be ill to avoid flying, Magee pretends to fall down the stairs and break his leg. The doctor explains that Magee was on the lookout because he broke his leg, rescuing the crew of the burning plane (the injury caused him to stop flying forever), and then he built a flight school. According to the doctor, people say that Magee trained the best and was the best. The doctor says that Magee died twenty years ago. Upon hearing this, Baloo realizes that he was helped by the spirit of Magee, whom he calls the guardian angel. Dr. Cooper (voiced by Alan Young) is a tortoise doctor whom Joe Magee told Bal and get to treat Maggie's allegedly injured leg in The Old Man and the Sea Duck. Cooper is the one who later tells Baloo the truth about Joe Magee's life. Cooper lives and works in the city twenty miles north of the Magee Flight School. Rick Skye (voiced by Simon Templeman) is a fighter pilot who speaks with a British accent and appears in the episode Bygoness. Captain Rick Skye was the leader of the legendary Squadron of Seven, which fought in the Great War, which ended 20 years before the episode began. Carrying a shipment of silver bars to help fund the fighting, he and his squadron mysteriously disappeared, and people thought he and his squadron had stolen silver. Baloo (who has been a fan of Rick Skye since childhood and reads comics about him) ended up finding him adrift at sea. At first, Baloo doubts that the man he saved is Rick Skye, because the idea seems incredible and he looks too young (since by this time he must be about 50 years old, but he looks like he's only 30 years old). However, after the mysterious figure demonstrates his flying skills, taking control of the Sea Duck and evading the attack of an air pirate, Baloo tends to believe that this man is actually Rick Skye. Faith Baloo, however, was later extinguished when Skye steals the Sea Duck to find the missing silver so he can complete his squadron's mission to deliver him and restore the honor of his squadron. Baloo chases the stolen Sea Duck, which is captured along with Sky by don Carnaj air pirates. Baloo is rescued by Sky and pulls out the Sea Duck, and threatens to throw the thief out of the plane, but the man proves that he is indeed Rick Skye, showing Bal with his medal Deserved Flying Cross. They then fly to some icy rocks in search of silver, but eventually find the rest of the Skye squadron frozen in the ice. Skye then made it clear that he and his squadron froze in the rocks during the snowstorm, keeping them alive in suspended animation so they wouldn't get old and keeping their planes in excellent working condition. Two decades later, Sky thawed and drifted into the sea, where he was rescued by Baloo at the start of the episode. Baloo and Skye are being thawed by the other six members of the squadron shortly before the pirates show up. Skye persuades Baloo to take silver (which was stored in one of the squadron's biplanes) and complete the delivery mission, while Skye and his squadron involve the pirates in a dogfight. Despite the fact that their biplanes are 20 years old, the squadron is able to defeat pirate fighters, but they run into problems when mother-ship pirates, an iron vulture, attacks them. However, after Baloo flies with his Sea Duck and saves Sky from destruction by cannon fire, the squadron together with Baloo are able to inflict serious damage to the iron vulture, forcing him to retreat. Rick Skye and Squadron Seven then fly into the sunset to an unknown fate, while Baloo flies back to the Supreme for refueling before completing a squadron mission to deliver silver and restore their honor. Of the six other members of Squadron Seven, only three are named: Scott, Johnny and Reggie. Reggie (voiced by Neil Ross) is the only member other than Rick Skye who speaks, and he does so with a British accent, just like his leader. Cool Hands Luke (voiced by Ron Feinberg) is a polar bear, about the size of Baloo, and has a very aggressive, chauvinistic, narcissistic and apparently sociopathic (he claims that he was caught cheating, that he has no conscience). He appears in an episode of Feminine Air in which he makes fun of the fact that Baloo works for a woman, and presses the question to drive the business away from Higher for Hire. His winning streak in the Air Scavenger Race (achieved by deception) was broken when Rebecca and Baloo (in his tan-Margaret persona) beat him and showed that he was a con man. His name is a pun in the book and film Cool Hand Luke. Mr. Pomeroy (voiced by Alan Oppenheimer) is the principal of Keith Elementary School in an episode of Sheepskin Deep. He is a short rough brown bear who manages and evaluates Baloo's equivalence test to determine whether he will receive a diploma. At first it seems that Baloo failed on one question, but later Baloo proves to Pomeroy that he answered the question correctly, and so Pomeroy gives Bal a passing score and a diploma. Ms. Morrissey (voiced by Susan Tolski) is a teacher at Keith Elementary School in Sheepskin Deep. Keith is a member of her class, and Baloo temporarily joins the class to get a diploma. When she first shows up, she welcomes Baloo back to school, and Baloo recognizes her and addresses her by name, indicating that she was one of the original primary school teachers at Baloo when he was a child. She's an elderly brown bear with tan fur and slightly hunched back. Clementine Clevenger (voiced by Soucie) is a tall, intelligent and earthy blonde dressed in Western clothes and pronounced with an American Southern accent in the episode Citizen Khan. She is an unwitting secretary/court reporter/girl Friday of corrupt and self-appointed Sheriff Homer in the small, western border-type mining town of Boomstone (read Tombstone, Arizona), owned by Han Industries and where the top-for-hire crew of Baloo, Keith and Wildcat are forced to land on the unscrupulous sheriff and his lackluster deputy Wendell. Fed up with a corrupt gomer for hijacking and kidnapping to mine for very volatile and yet to be a valuable substance uranium and hiding it from Khan, she (and other city dwellers/mine) goes Wildcat for the corporate tycoon after blasting soot his face with a tiger-like markings that make him look like Khan (and he decides to impersonate Khan after Baloo convinces him to do so to let them go), for which she has deep admiration. When ill-treated miners hold Wildcat hostage to leave the mine, she sneaks into Khan's headquarters in Cape Suzette, where she unknowingly talks to the real Shere Khan about the situation, but she gets cut off by Homer, who locks her in his room and Khan decides to investigate his own apparent abduction. After a daring escape and rescue of Baloo and Keith from Homer's prison cell, she leads them to the mine, where the sheriff and deputy blow up the entrance and decide to escape just as Khan arrives on his private jet to find out what is going on. After catching the crooked lawyers and meeting with the CEO, she becomes the new foreman of the Urognia mine. She appreciates Wildcat's softness, innocent sincerity and mechanical genius, with him having mutual feelings for her as well (calling her Clem) and they both fall in love. She stars in Sheepskin Deep. Sheriff Homer (voiced by David Doyle) is a pig dressed as a sheriff of the Western Frontier of a small town and pronounced with an abrasive voice in the episode Citizen Khan. In fact, he is a foreman of a mine in the mining town of Boomstone, who works for Khan Enterprises, and withholding information from Khan about explosive urgency. With his less-than-smart cohort and Deputy Wendell, he forces passers-by to work in the mines on trump charges and even imprisons them. Baloo, Keith and Wildcat manage to stop Homer and Wendell during a mid-air chase involving rotten kunquats who chew their flight plane. Later (ironically) they are forced to work in the same mine where they kept their former captives. Wendell (voiced by Frank Welker) is a not-so-intelligent wolf deputy and accomplice of Sheriff Homer, who speaks with an American Southern accent in the episode Citizen Khan. Van Lo (voiced by Robert Ito) is the evil panda emperor of Panda-La (read Shangri-La) in the episode Last Horizons. When Baloo reopens the city and tells him and his men that they can visit Cape Suzette, Van Lo jumps at a chance and orders his men to fly around the city using giant balloons to invade and conquer him. With thermal missiles among its weapons, Panda-La easily defeats the city's defenses. Accused of causing an invasion, Baloo seeks to atone for his guilt by flying out alone to fight against Van Lo's forces. By filling the sea duck with ice cream, Baloo initially evades the heat rockets, but eventually While in captivity, Baloo tries to negotiate with Van Lo, but the emperor explains that his people seek not to make friends, and to conquer new territories in which they live. Later, Baloo receives unexpected help from Keith, Louis, Rebecca and Wildcat, allowing him to escape and return to Sea Duck. During the ensuing battle, Baloo manages to use his pandas' own weapons against them and defeats Panda-La. Van Lo was last seen floating down into Cape Suzette Bay in a basket of parachute balloons with his two sons after escaping from his crashing palatial ball. His fate is unknown after that, as is the fate of his people. Muffy and Buffy Vanderschmere (voiced by Linda Gary and Welker respectively) are a fox-fraudster couple posing as wealthy, snobbish clients who cheat on Above's rental company to transport some supposedly valuable family jewelry to Hyenasport, hoping to get Sea Duck as collateral insurance in the event of theft or loss of jewelry, as is believed to be Rebecca's in an episode of Touch of Glass. So they make an effort to lose the jewels at every opportunity, including throwing them out of one of the seaplane windows and, after landing at Louis Place, putting the blame on Louis for the stolen jewelry (since they and Rebecca find the nightclub/motel and its owner too shabby for their tastes). Later, the owner of the nightclub exposed them as fraudsters wanted by law, and the jewelry turned out to be fakes. They overpowered Louis and Rebecca a few minutes after takeoff on the plane. Muffy is dressed in a blue dress and wide-brimmed hat, pearl necklace, anklet bracelets and blond hair (it turns out to be a wig), and Buffy is dressed as a golfer. Both say imitating Boston blueblood accents, though Buffy sounds a bit like Thurston Howell, III. Broadcast Sally (voiced by Cheryl Bernstein) is a big, strong and sensual female hippo with a very sultry voice who works as a popular morning disc jockey on radio station K-CAPE in Cape Suzette, mostly in a dress with a floral print and a large hat featuring plus spritzing herself in perfumes usually in an episode of The Time Bandit. It is so popular that its broadcast range goes up to Tembria, where its transmission is prohibited by law but audible, regardless of the punishment that comes with it. Baloo is a constant object of her desire, as he owes her a grocery list of favors, which in turn she wants him to repay by going on a date with her, largely because of his reluctance and rejection of her methods of blackmail at the same time. She may have been a pun on World War II-era propaganda broadcaster Axis Sally during the war against Nazi Germany's allies with the same type of voice and patronising tone in broadcasts throughout war-torn Europe and on shortwave American radio. She also makes cameo appearances in episodes of Louis' Last Stand and Time Waiting Without a Bear. Ralph Trogmorton (voiced by Ken Sans) is an immaculately dressed coziy with round glasses who works as a flight instructor at FLAP (Federal Pilots License Agency) at Cape Suzette in the episode On the Wing and the Bear. Alarmed and humorless, he is known by the famous and terrible nickname Love for Flank'Em. Trogmorton is extremely meticulous and does absolutely everything in alphabetical order (for example, he insists that his car be curbed first with air in the tires, then brake fluid, then a coolant, then Dipstick, etc. in alphabetical order). This approach makes Bal so nervous, which prevents him from renewing his flying rights (he was also a driving instructor in his teens). In desperation, Baloo tries to find work in other areas, but each time he is fired because of complaints Trogmorton and even his equally alphabetical granddaughter Katie (voiced by Sherry Lynn) during a carnival trip. Baloo finally redeems himself in the eyes of the instructor, and gets his license back when he rescues them both from a difficult situation involving Don Karnaj's air pirates, discovering that they were behind a series of oil raids that caused an energy crisis on behalf of Sher Khan. Jane's plane, known as Plane Jane (voiced by Susan Silo), is a very capable female hippo pilot who has learned to fly from Baloo (it is believed to have taken her a minute), and which shares almost the same mannerisms and behaviors as her former mentor in the episode Waiters of the Wost Twearure. Jane's plane (as she is called Baloo) was once a member of the school with Princess Grace Walla Bing Bang, but never finished. Despite her attitude to show-fish (she never misses the chance to rub it to Baloo that she's the best pilot) and often sneaky, competitive, she also has a heart of gold underneath and will help a friend in need. Princess Grace (voiced by Victoria Carroll) is a white swan princess and the first in line to the throne of the Walla Walla Bing Bang in Waiters of the Wost Twearure. However, her right to the throne is challenged by her supposed long-lost cousin Prince Rudolph, and in order to prove her right to rule, she must get the long-lost Ruby Wings. After Baloo and Jane's Plane remove the wings and bring them to her, she is crowned queen. When she said in a Walla Bing Bang accent, her name is pronounced Pwinceess Gwace. Prince Rudolph (voiced by Dan Castellaneta) is a black swan who is presumably second in line to the throne of the Kingdom of Walla Bing Bang and the long-lost cousin of Princess Grace, who challenges the princess's right to the throne in the episode Waiters of the Wost In fact, however, he is neither one nor another impostor who wants to use Ruby Wings to steal the throne and kingdom. Eventually, he is defeated by Baloo and Jane's Plane, who pull out the wings and bring them to the princess in time for her to be crowned queen at the coronation. When he said in the Walla Bing Bang accent, his name is pronounced Pwince Wudolf. Captain William Stansbury (voiced by Peter Reneday) is a 19th-century sea of lions who crashed his sailboat a century ago on the island where Louis built his nightclub and whose ghost haunts when he is magically born during a casual night of hunting in Her Chance to Sleep. Terrified of the island and returning to Cape Suzette, Baloo and Louis tell about this overworked Rebecca, but she does not believe them. With his beautiful looks and gentlemanly manners, Rebecca becomes amazed with it, but in fact he is a snobbish, subjective and annoying poltergeist, which prevents them from leaving the island. Seducing her under the moonlight with her charms while walking on the island, a lonely ghost wants to take Rebecca from the earthly world, an idea she accepts in her tired state of mind. Baloo and Louis eventually discover that Stansbury is a ghost, so they try to capture him alone, but fail, and Stansbury then forces the wrecked ship to be recovered and exit from under the nightclub as a flying ghost ship. While Baloo and Louis are forced to deal with the magical power of the captain, they find on the ship a book of spells that will save Stansbury and return everything to normal. They then begin to banish the ghost by reading a spell from the book, but Rebecca intervenes before they can finish. After the pilot gently convinces his tearful employer that it is not a dream or life for her, reminding her of her daughter Molly, whom she left at home, Rebecca reluctantly ends a spell that sends the ghostly captain back into the spiritual world. The captain promises to wait for her in the afterlife when the ghost ship takes off into the night sky. Stansbury's painting, which was previously shown in a shipwreck near Louis Place, is now seen prominently on the wall in Rebecca's apartment as she tells Molly about the captain. Crazy Edie (voiced by Billy Hayes) is a female wild-eyed and gravel-voiced bird-mechanics-fraudster who sabotages planes to charge high prices to fix them, with the help of their four cute, fluffy gremlin-like creatures (voiced by Frank Welker) who are forced against their will to help her in the episode The Sound and the Sound It controls them with special collars mounted around their necks that cause them to destroy/disassemble machines (such as airplanes) when exposed to a certain frequency of sound (e.g. created by its device fork settings, or when wildcat hit a wrench against the engine). At one point, Edie temporarily loses the furry creatures, which are then found and befriended by the Wild Mother, who is mistaken and calls them lobsters. He later helps free them and return them to his home in Bayou after he and Baloo foiled Edie's last acts in the competition. Wildcat named the one with Sammy's red collar, the one with Frankie's green collar, the one with Maxine's pink collar, and the one with Homer's blue collar. Crazy Edie should not be confused with an old classmate Baloo by the same surname, which appears near the end of the episode Sheepskin Deep. In the episode, Hans and Heiga (voiced by Stan Jones and Joan Gerber respectively) are the assassin servants of von Brunwald Castle in Bear (read Bavaria), who live to serve and kill the von Brunwald family to inherit the family when Baloo becomes the last baron to hold the title in the episode The Balocest. Badger burger Hans provides everything, including placing a shark in the pool and spooking Baloo with a family curse to make him paranoid, while shrewd housekeeper Helga dishes out poisonous dishes to serve the pilot. They then go on a rampage to finish him off and his houseguests away. 7 They finally stopped after Baloo forged his own death with the help of Rebecca, and informs the local authorities of the situation just as they and von Brunwald's family attorney Austin Featheridge arrive to tell him that they are foreclosure and confiscation of fortunes due to centuries of unpaid taxes. Austin Fienidge (voiced by Gilbert) is a lawyer for the von Brunwald family and a financial representative who is a member of the law firm Featheridge, Featheridge and Nowinski. He is the first to inform Bal about his noble pedigree, and he is also the one who later informs Balu of the confiscation of his property because of his family's unpaid taxes. He's an elderly white bird. O'Roarke (voiced by Cummings) is a hideous, raucous bull who cheats on Baloo and Wildcat to taste him in the mysterious land of dinosaurs that come to life with the help of a magical waterfall, presumably to start a touring business in the episode Paradise Lost. However, his real motives are much darker than what he makes others believe (he wants to start a hunting business for big game hunters who want to kill dinosaurs). In order to thwart his plans, Wildcat disables the waterfall to hide the valley from the hunters, but because of the good nature of the mechanics and a sense of wonder towards Creatures, it secretly allows the waterfall later to reopen, allowing dinosaurs to live again in the world. Nanuk (voiced by Cummings) is a large polar bear who lives in the Arctic in a needle and speaks with an Inuit accent, and to which Baloo delivers pizza in the episode Pizza Pie in the Sky. Nanuk is one of Baloo's and Louis Pizza Pie's sky-delivery pizza business, but the first delivery to it includes the wrong-sized pizza, prompting two more re-deliveries to it, each of which also go awry. Bob (voiced by Cummings) is a pelican and owner of Bob's Discount House of Fish, who reluctantly sells rancid anchovies to Bal and Keith in Pizza Pie in the Sky.
